FSB Asia Group discusses current vulnerabilities and climate-related financial risks

The Financial Stability Board (FSB) Regional Consultative Group for Asia (RCG Asia) held a virtual meeting today to discuss current global and regional macroeconomic and financial market developments. The meeting convenes senior representatives of financial and supervisory authorities from key economies in Asia.

Members discussed financial market developments related to the Russian invasion of Ukraine, including elevated and highly volatile commodity prices, and the implications for financial stability. Members shared information on actions their authorities are taking to address current vulnerabilities.

The group also received an update on the FSB’s overall work programme, including work to enhance cross-border payments and to address the financial risks posed by crypto-assets. Members discussed areas of relevance for RCG Asia member jurisdictions and how they could contribute to the work programme.

Members also discussed progress being made within the region on addressing financial risks from climate change. They exchanged views on how the emerging market economies’ perspective on climate-related financial risks could be best addressed in the FSB’s work and areas where the region could contribute to the FSB’s Roadmap for Addressing Financial Risks from Climate Change.
