

INDIA

As per the Securities Contracts (Regulation) Act, only those derivatives are permitted to be traded which are listed on exchanges. However, in case banks, are on one side of an OTC derivatives trade, such contracts are permissible as provided under Section 45V of the RBI Act. Further, there is no legal framework in India which enables authorities to defer to another jurisdiction's regulatory framework with respect to OTC derivatives.